FOREWORD

In presenting this, the second volume of the ASH-HI-LIFE, to you, the students, graduates, and faculty of the Asheboro High School, the staff and Senior Class hope that it will in some small way help to preserve the memories and associations of the days which in all probability will be recalled as the most pleasant of your lives.

If in the years which are to come this book will aid in bringing back fond memories and in recalling the days which were so happily spent together, then our efforts will not have been in vain.

Best wishes to you all
Massa E. Lambert

SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

With the publication of this book, the ASH-HI-LIFE, reappears after a lapse of six years. May it mark the re-awakening of popular interest so essential to the growth of the public schools. In the following pages you will find a mirror of high school life. It is my wish that you may see in it the happiness which exists among us who live and work together. To the Seniors who sponsored the annual I extend congratulations, and I assure them of our interest which will follow them into their new fields. They leave with us this picture of school life which will add something to the spirit of our high school.

CLASS HISTORY

On a beautiful September morning, in 1934, one hundred fifty-six young people, seventy-nine boys and seventy-seven girls, embarked upon a career in dear old Asheboro High. The seas into which we were sailing were entirely new to us. We were filled with delight at the prospect of the voyage, but quaked and trembled a little at the thought of what rocks and breakers might be ahead. We found the freshmen crew divided into four groups, over which the following officers presided: Misses Mahel Robertson and Clara Gill, Mrs. J. G. Prevette, and Mr. J. J. Sanderson.

We had some rough sailing on the waters, finding more rocks and breakers than we had expected. We knew few people in high school, knew nothing of our responsibilities, and found the work much harder than that of the lower grades. After acustoming ourselves to the atmosphere, we sailed smoothly onward. Under the direction of the higher officers, the various groups had lower officers and committees. Eight of the boys joined the Junior Patrol. They were: Robert Barnes, Robert McGlohon, Tal Rochelle, Jack Pugh, Harold Walton, Julius Williams, David Stedman, and Mahlon King. This organization has safeguarded many pupils coming to and from school. The midget football team was also organized among the crew with much success. We now have only three of the players in our class. They are: Truett Frazier, Noah Burrows, and Herbert Richardson.

Our first voyage was completed in May, and we separated to join each other the next year.

One hundred sixteen pupils, fifty-eight boys and fifty-eight girls, survived the first voyage and entered into the second with much delight at the prospect of lighter sailing. We had hard subjects here also, but we had been in the atmosphere for a year and knew more about what was expected of us. We had three Sophomore groups here, over which Officers Mary Little Steele, Juanita Taylor, and E. C. Swing, presided. Eight girls taking home economics had the pleasure of being waitresses at the Junior-Senior Reception. Those having this honor were: Charlene Cagle, Catherine Kearns, Edna Mae Wimingham, De Ette Austin, Virginia Lisk, Maxine Cole, Helen Bulla, and Edna Davis.

That year we had the misfortune of losing Mr. H. J. Hilker as superintendent; but we were very fortunate, indeed, in having in his place such a fine man as Mr. Reginald Turner. Taking everything into consideration, we had smoother sailing the whole year than in our freshman year.

Only ninety-seven students, forty-eight boys and forty-nine girls survived the second voyage to enter into the third, which was a very happy and delightful one. This year we again had only two groups of sailors, over which Miss Cornelia Ayers and Mr. John Garrett presided. Ever since we had been in the lower grades, we had looked forward to being juniors and going to the Junior-Senior. It was a very glorious occasion. This year nine of our members had the honor of being enlisted in the National Honorary Beta Club. They were: Catherine Kearns, Marie Craven, Dorothy Hix, Edna Mae Wimingham, Helen Phillips, Donald Yow, J. C. Ellen, David Stedman, and Truett Frazier. Catherine Kearns was elected vice-president of North Carolina Beta Clubs, and we were quite proud of her indeed. Another honor was bestowed upon the Junior Class, that of furnishing marshals for Commencement. They were chosen by the Senior Class, and included: David Stedman, Chief Marshal; Catherine Kearns, Catherine Patterson, Marie Craven, Truett Frazier, J. C. Ellen, and Donald Yow.

The girls of the Junior Class made a daisy chain, and presented it to the seniors on Class Night. Every junior girl took part in this. You can see, by this record, that this was one of our most exciting voyages.

Twenty-six boys and thirty-eight girls entered into the fourth and last voyage as full-fledged seniors. We were very much excited, and yet sad, realizing that this would be our last voyage in dear old Asheboro High. This was the first year since 1934 to have two senior home rooms. Divided into two sections, a total of sixty-four seniors, we have sailed with Mr. John J. Garrett and Miss Massa E. Lambert as pilots. The officers of the class included: David Stedman, president; J. C. Ellen, vice-president; Marie Craven, secretary; and Truett Frazier, treasurer. Our class colors and flower are orchid and silver and the violet, respectively. The class motto is: "Forward ever, backward never." Our mascots are Sara Elizabeth Trollinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Trollinger and Howard Seawell, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Seawell.

This year we formed a journalistic club with the following officers: President, Mahlon King; vice-president, Jack Pugh; secretary, Catherine Kearns; and treasurer, Frances Frazier. Our club furnished the editors for the school page of the Randolph Tribune. Virginia Lisk was elected editor-in-chief with De Ette Austin as senior editor; Mary Louise Rich, personal editor; Doris Cranford and J. C. Ellen, sports editors. Each class had an editor also.

This is the first year since 1932 that an annual has been published in Asheboro High School. We started with only a faint hope of having one, but everyone co-operated so nicely that the annual was a success. The business men of the town seemed to take as much interest in it as the high school, and willingly gave their advertisements to support us. David Stedman was elected editor-in-chief and Jack Pugh, business manager. There were twelve staff members assisting these, and we couldn't have had the annual without the co-operation of all.

The Beta Club chose seven members from the Senior Class including Catherine Patterson, Clara Louise Cox, Helen Bulla, Virginia Lisk, De Ette Austin, Harold Walton, and Marvin Phillips. The officers of the club this year are David Stedman, president; Edna Mae Wimingham, vice-president; Helen Phillips, secretary; and J. C. Ellen, treasurer. Under the sponsorship of Miss Lambert and Mr. Garrett, the Beta Club sailed smoothly.

A new club was organized this year under the direction of Miss Eleanor Willoughby, commercial teacher. The name of the club is the Commercial Club, and it has the following officers: President, Lelah Mae Wright; vice-president, Robert Barnes; secretary, Farris Way; and treasurer, Mary Moffitt.

The big moment in our lives is just around the corner. Everyone is talking about commencement. We have ordered our invitations and have started on the pageant for class night, and also the senior play. All we seniors are thrilled at the prospect of graduating; but, although some will not admit it, it will be a sad event. In going through these four years, we have appreciated the help the teachers have given us, more than we can say in words. May all other students have as good a time and be as happy as we have been in dear old Asheboro High School.

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY '38

"Why, I hardly know this place! Asheboro today is certainly different from the Asheboro of ten years ago," ran my thoughts as I neared the end of my long bus trip from New York back to the "ole home town." It certainly seemed good to be returning and to see the places where I had spent a large part of my life. From the bus window I saw the site where formerly stood our alma mater, but now there was a large, modern building standing there, which I was told later was the new Asheboro High School. How proud the town and the students must have been the day that it was completed.

I could hardly wait to hear where my old classmates were and what they had been doing since that eventful graduation day in May, but my family met me at the bus station and took me home before I had a chance to see anyone. That night, however, one of my best school-day friends, Helen Bulla, came to see me. Our thoughts immediately turned to high school memories.

"Helen, how about telling me what all the members of that Senior Class of '38 are doing now?" I eagerly asked.

Helen gladly assented and began by telling about our class officers, "David Stedman, president, and Truett Frazier, treasurer, are both successful stock brokers in New York City. Marie Craven, secretary, is an accomplished pianist, and J. C. Ellen, vice-president, is a sports writer for the New York World."

"Please hurry and tell me about the rest of the class. Just go ahead and tell me about the members as you think of them," I begged, as she stopped for a moment.

"Well, let's start with the nurses of the class, Hilda Henley, Mary Harrison Redding, Edith McCain, Lena Deaton, Gladys Stout, Lela Mae Moody, Mary Louise Rich, Virginia Newby, and Dorothy Welch are all helping to keep this country of ours healthy. Marvin Phillips and Jack Pugh are in the same work, and are fast becoming noted doctors."

I had suddenly come upon a picture of the Commercial Club in my annual, and I interrupted to ask about any who had continued in that work.

"We have a considerable number employed as secretaries and stenographers," she replied. "Lela Mae Wright is a secretary in Washington; Mary Lee Huneycutt, a stenographer in Boston; Mozelle Kearns, private secretary to a large manufacturer; Maxine Cole has been a secretary in a local office until recently, when she quit to take up the position of wife of a prominent banker; Doris Cranford is secretary to the President of the United States; Helen Phillips is secretary to the pastor of the Central Methodist Protestant Church; Helen I. Brown is a stenographer at Brevard College; Edyth Craven is a stenographer in a noted lawyer's office in Charlotte; Catherine Patterson is a medical secretary; Audrey Seltz is secretary to a moving picture producer (I hear rumors of a contract), and Grady Owens is a retail lumberman's secretary. Now who else is there you want to hear about?"

"Have any of the girls settled down to housekeeping yet?" I asked, remembering all those high school romances.

"Yes, Catherine Ward is the wife of a famous horse doctor; Frances Hogan is happily married in a small town not very far from Asheboro; Catherine Kearns is married to a pastor; Edna Brown is the wife of a noted football player; Golda Lee Robbins is an engineer's wife, and Virginia Lisk recently resigned her position on a Chicago newspaper to marry the editor's son. Edna Mae, I remember you were always interested in sports; we have three members in the sports world today. Richard Siler is coach at the University of Minnesota, and John L. McRae and Robert Barnes are professional baseball players."

"Where is Mahlon King now? I remember he wanted to be a medical missionary to India and Poland," I asked Helen.

"Why, Mahlon sailed for Bombay last week," Helen replied.

"Oh, there is Virginia Allred's picture. What is she doing?" I questioned.

"Virginia is a professional dancer, and I've heard she is very good. We have several more who are prominent in the world of music and dancing. Harold Walton is a valued member of a noted band; Harris Lamb is an orchestra leader in Hollywood, who, from all I hear, can really 'swing it,' and Leo Hammer is a musician and artist. Then we have several boys who have made good in business. Lacy Lewis, Jr., and Donald Yow are presidents of insurance companies; Boyd Hamilton is a district manager of chain stores; Tal Rochelle is an automobile dealer (Buicks, by the way); Thomas McDowell is the owner of several large theatres in the state; Harold Creech is the manager of a men's shop, and Noah Burrows has been very successful in the banking business."

I interrupted here to ask if there were no teachers from such a large class.

"Yes, we have one, Pearl Gallimore. Most of that class were much too lively to be teachers. Well, let's see, we've about covered the roll. Charlene Cagle is a hostess on a ship. (I wonder if a certain person in the navy had anything to do with that.) Julius Williams, Leonard Freeman, and Farris Way are in the air service, and John Cox is an officer at Annapolis. Herbert Richardson is a world-wide traveler, and is in the Philippine Islands at present. De Ette Austin is a reporter on a New York paper, and Jean Prevost is also a journalist. Dorothy Hix is a helper to a pastor in the western part of North Carolina, and Frances Frazier is an interior decorator in Florida. Robert McGlohon is a forest ranger, and, as you know, Clara Lonise Cox is owner of a dress shop."

"What is Mary Sue Hayworth doing?" I questioned, as I happened to be looking at her picture right then.

"She and Edna Davis have realized their ambitions and are valued dietitians," Helen replied. "They are both employed in the hospital of Mayo Brothers."

"Well, you've told me about everyone but yourself, Helen. How are you getting along in your beauty shop?"

She immediately replied, "I'm very happy in this work and I have a nice, modern shop. How have you been getting on?"

"I thoroughly enjoy my work as secretary to the manager of the New York Yankees, and I love seeing all the baseball games. My, but I'm tired and sleepy."

"Yes, it is getting late and I must go home. I've enjoyed these hours tonight, but all good things must end. Goodnight," and she had gone, leaving me to dream about those days spent in Asheboro High School with all my fellow classmates.

CLASS POEM

Soon our school days will pass away,
School days, the dearest along life's way.
Many a time in those days gone by,
Little things, so trivial, made us cry.
Many a time we have felt despair;
Hearts were heavy with worry and care.
Yet most school life has been full of joy,
Made us happy, every girl and boy.
Sometimes we've wished for a life more free;
Now we linger; 'tis easy to see.
But all happiness must have an end;
Now we depart from school and from friend.
'Tis graduation time, the month of May;
At last has come our own great day.
Another step in life's journey we've made,
But school day memories will never fade.
Soon doctor, lawyer, or merchant we'll be,
And you will forget Jack, Mary, or me.
But there is no exception to this rule:
We shall never forget our own dear school.
Faith in our own school shall never totter.
I give you Asheboro High, our alma mater!

The Ashboro Chapter of the National Honorary Beta Club was organized in the fall of 1934, to succeed the old Alpha Honor Society, a local organization. The nine charter members elected Sidney Truesdale the first president. Since that time Sidney has been succeeded by Carl Phillips, Helen E. Brown, and David Stedman. During the first three years of the club, Misses Massa E. Lambert and Clara Gill were the sponsors. Miss Lambert and Mr. John J. Garrett are sponsors this year.

The National Honorary Beta Club is an organization with thousands of members, chosen from the Junior and Senior classes of high schools in eight states. All members are chosen for scholarship and character. The watchwords are loyalty, courage, and leadership.

Dr. Sidney B. Hall, state superintendent of Virginia Schools, is national president.
